Dear Mom and Dad,

I should be studying right now as the time draws closer and closer to finals but I wanted to be sure and thank you for the wonderful birthday party I had. It was fun and all of the presents are much appreciated also. They have all come in very handy. I'll probably be coming home again on the weekend of June 2, but I'll be studying hard then and won't be able to visit much. I have to do well in Chemistry—At least get a C.

I have some exciting news to tell you. I finally went in for my nursing interview and was I lucky that one of the interviewers was one of the girls who lives in the dorms here who is also in the nursing program. There were four interviewers, Anyway she couldn't wait to tell me how well I did when she got home on Friday. She said (they grade by points) that out of 25 points, I got 19 points. They grade you on appearance, maturity, references, past experience, grades, this nursing test we took, personality and I don't know what else. Shannon said I got all of the points on some of them. She kept wanting to find out how I did so she asked what score do the people get who get into the program. They pick 40 out of 400 or more applicants and she said the average score of the top 40 was 17, so I am 2 points ahead! This lady kept raving about my references and everything especially this really good one that Ken Wagstaff wrote for me and Sharon said that when I left the interview and when they are discussing me that the lady said "I want her in!" She was impressed by the State Capitol stationery that Ken wrote on and also the one that Phyllis Nelson from Washington D.C. wrote for me from the hospital that I worked at. So it looks like I may get in. I'll find out at the end of this week and will let you know what happens. I am so excited about it. A lot of others that I know down here applied & didn't make it because it's so hard to get into. So the good or bad news will come soon. I can barely wait! If I do get in I will have to go to summer school to get some classes that I need, so I wouldn't be working for awhile. The suspense is killing me. Oh I sure do hope I get into the program.

My classes right now are coming along. I'll get an A in Sociology, a B in Psychology, an A possibly in English (I have improved my writing in that class), an A or B in my math class, an A in P.E. and a C in Chemistry. I better get a C in Chemistry, otherwise I won't get into the nursing program. So I'm going to work real hard and do my best and not waste time. I've got to study really hard so that I can make it. Oh, I better make it!

Guess what. I'll be back to my old job down here at Santa Rosa as I was picked to be a finance chairman for the Peoples Temple College Fund. I was shown last night how to do it and it's a real pain and a lot of busy work. I don't know why but I think my life has been directed toward the field of banking. They say that Taureans should all make good bankers anyway.

So thats how I'm doing. What do you think of all this Watergate stuff? We can watch it on T.V. at school. Anyway I must study now. I'll let you know as soon as I find out about the nursing program.

Love,
Annie

Thanks again for the wonderful birthday.
