Dear Dr. Anderson,

The videotape dialogues which you and Mr. Krishnamurti had in 1974 have been of great interest to our viewers. Because over the years so many people have asked for transcripts, we have decided that it would be a good idea to publish the material of the dialogues in book form.

Our colleagues in England of the Krishnamurti Foundation Trust Ltd. who have been responsible for editing and publishing the Krishnamurti material in recent years, have asked us to authorize them to proceed with the publishing of the eighteen videotaped dialogues.

This letter is to ask you for your views on our publishing this material. According to the release document of May 23, 1974, there are some stipulations with respect to editing the material. In transcribing the spoken words to paper for the purpose of publishing, it will be, of course, necessary to do a certain amount of editing. Would you like to review the manuscript before it is published and would you perhaps be interested in writing a preface to it?

We would appreciate hearing from you with regard to your views on this proposed project.

Sincerely yours,

Mark Lee
