Dear Sirs or Madams:

The Pepperdine University Center for Innovative Education has received the mandate to develop degree programs for an emerging student population--adults seeking recurrent education. Study of this adult population has revealed a need among the managers and staff of human relations organizations for a degree program geared for their particular needs and concerns. The enclosed program bulletin describes the Master of Arts in Human Resources Management. This degree program has specific relevance to the managerial and interpersonal dilemmas of those involved in community action/community service agencies.

Please review the material and feel free to contact me for further information. Pepperdine representatives are also available for appointments and group presentations. I look forward to your response to the degree concept and its delivery system.

Sincerely,

Jo H. Volkert
