SECONDARY INSTRUCTIONAL EXCHANGE PROGRAM

Instructional exchange programs in the secondary schools began three years ago with the implementation of the Hale/O'Farrell program. Several types of instructional exchange programs have been developed since that time and have been successful as functional models, but the Hale/O'Farrell model appears to offer the most effective and workable instructional exchange activity for secondary students.

The San Diego Plan for Racial Integration, June 1979, contained a description of the Secondary Instructional Exchange Program for the next three years beginning in 1979-80. This plan provided for instructional exchange programs that would involve 200 students each year.

In his Memorandum Decision of July 27, 1979, Judge Welsh directed the district to initiate a greatly expanded Secondary Instructional Exchange Program. Welsh stated, "The district should strive to attract 800 students from both junior and senior high schools." Responding to the interest of the court and the positive reactions to the Hale/O'Farrell model, Secondary Schools Division staff prepared an amendment to the integration plan which included an expanded Instructional Exchange Program designed to involve as many as 800 secondary students during the 1979-80 school year. This amendment was approved by the Board of Education on August 9, 1979 and has been submitted to Judge Welsh.

The working model for secondary instructional exchange programs, as proposed in the amendment, was developed during August and is included as Attachment A. This model provides a minimum of two hours of instructional time daily for one semester or a year. Secondary administrators were informed of these programs through workshop sessions held prior to the opening of school in September.

Cooperative planning by site personnel and Secondary Schools Division staff resulted in the identification of several instructional exchange programs to begin as early as the week of September 25 and no later than November 1 (See Attachment B). With the programs confirmed for first semester, and the interest shown by junior and senior high schools to participate during second semester, the projected goal of 800 students in secondary instructional exchange programs will be attained during the 1979-80 school year.

Total funds needed for this expanded Secondary Instructional Exchange Program will be $50,000 more than originally requested within the AS budget. Through integration budget adjustments funding is available to implement the expanded Secondary Instructional Exchange Program.

INSTRUCTIONAL EXCHANGE PROGRAM (MODEL)

Proposed Model: The proposed model for instructional exchange programs will include the following:

1. Minimum of two hours of instructional time daily for one semester or a year.
2. Classroom teachers will accompany their students on exchange programs.
3. Secondary schools with 70% or more majority students will be "paired" with schools with 70% or more minority students.
4. 30-35 students from each school will be involved in each instructional exchange program.
5. Teacher assistance time and/or teacher time will be provided each site in the program.
6. Coordination of exchange programs will be provided.
7. Priority will be given to exchange programs that reinforce the VEEP allied school pattern.
