Community Relations and Integration Services Div. No. 7

SAN DIEGO CITY SCHOOLS

Date: October 18, 1983

To: Area Assistant Superintendents, Area Operation Managers, Basic Skills Director, and Elementary School Principals

Subject: IMPLEMENTATION OF STUDENT RACE/HUMAN RELATIONS PROGRAM

Department and/or Persons Concerned: Elementary School Principals, K-6 Classroom Teachers

Reference: STUDENT RACE/HUMAN RELATIONS PROGRAM

Information in Brief:

The attached information describes the implementation process for the Student Race/Human Relations Program, grades kindergarten through sixth. Included in this packet are:

1. General description of implementation procedures and responsibilities.
2. Summary of Content Sequence Chart--REVISED, which designates the Student Race/Human Relations Program objectives to be taught at each grade level.
3. Sample record keeping sheet to document student participation.
4. K-6 Management Charts which delineate where race/human relations concepts are to be taught in each social studies unit.
5. Form for ordering Student Race/Human Relations Program materials.

During the 1983-84 school year, sites will order student program materials through the Curriculum Materials Distribution Center using the appropriate stock number.

Beginning with the 1984-85 school year, the necessary student program materials will be circulated in the traditional fashion with the social studies materials for each unit.

Questions concerning implementation should be directed to the site-assigned race/human relations facilitator, social studies resource teachers, Harvey Prokop, social studies specialist, Educational Services Division, 293-8016, or Dr. Yvonne Johnson, director, Community Relations and Integration Services Division, Longfellow Elementary, Bungalow 1, 275-3922.

Race/Human Relations Program

IMPLEMENTATION OF STUDENT PROGRAM IN RACE/HUMAN RELATIONS, K-6

PROGRAM IMPLEMENTATION

The cognitive instructional portion of the Race/Human Relations Program is to be taught during the social studies time block. While ideally a Race/Human Relations Program should permeate all courses work and interactions which people have in and out of the classroom, at this stage of program development and implementation, a more structured approach is necessary to assure that race/human relations concepts are taught.

A survey conducted by the Evaluation Services Department showed that more teachers indicated social studies as the most appropriate content area for race/human relations curriculum to be taught. Because of the knowledge base of teachers of social studies, they should best be able to integrate the race/human relations curriculum into their teaching activities. Thus, it seems feasible to follow the pattern established during the 1982-83 school year and again provide the Student Race/Human Relations Program through social studies classes.

Program Content

Content for the Student Race/Human Relations Program is defined by the Concept Goals (Please refer to pages 12.9 through 12.13, Race/Human Relations Multi-Year District Program for Staff and Students notebook distributed at the principals' workshops September 8, 9, and 15.)

Social Studies and Race/Human Relations Programs Management Charts

The Student Race/Human Relations Program is to be conducted in the social studies time block in accordance with the "Master Schedule for Health, Science, and Social Studies" for traditional schools. Year-round schools will follow the Social Studies, Science, and Health Instructional Schedules for 1983-84.

In cooperation with the social studies department, management charts for grades kindergarten through sixth have been prepared which delineate the sequence for presentation of race/human relations concepts within the social studies unit. Each chart provides specific information on the social studies activities to be taught, day by day, throughout each unit in the sequence. The charts also specify the days when race/human relations activities are most appropriately taught to best compliment and reinforce the social studies lesson. Twenty-six charts, in all, are included and are organized by social studies level and sequence. Each chart provides a check-off space to be used as documentation that activities have been completed. One complete set of the management charts has been included with this packet. Each chart has its own stock number to facilitate ordering.

Enrichment Activities

Enrichment activities for the Race/Human Relations Program can be located through the following sources:

- Multicultural collection at the Instructional Media Center (IMC)
- District Social Studies Guides
- General collection at IMC
- Commercial publications

In addition, the site-assigned race/human relations facilitators and social studies department staff may also serve as a resource to assist in providing enrichment activities.

AREAS OF RESPONSIBILITY

School Principal

The principal is responsible for the implementation, supervision, and operation of the district's Race/Human Relations Program in the school. More specifically, the principal is responsible for supervising classroom teachers to ensure that:

1. The objectives contained within the Concept Goals, as adopted by the Board of Education during June 1982, are met.

2. District-developed materials for the program are available and used.

3. The teacher provides instruction to the students in order to meet the criteria of the stated objectives.

4. Observations and visitations are made in each classroom during the race/human relations instructional time and assistance is provided whenever needed.

5. Records are maintained and shared with the appropriate School Operations, and Community Relations and Integration Services Division, assistant superintendent, including the principal's record of classroom observations and student participation in the Race/Human Relations Program.

Classroom Teacher

Under the direction of the principal, teachers are responsible for instruction of the district's Race/Human Relations Program. At the elementary level, all teachers are responsible for implementing the program at the classroom level.

More specifically, the teacher is responsible for:

1. Encouraging active student participation.

2. Using the materials in the appropriate district guide for the Race/Human Relations Program.

3. Providing direct instruction for those activities which meet the stated objective.

4. Working cooperatively with district race/human relations staff to provide additional activities to reinforce a concept that was not clearly understood.

5. Supervising race/human relations small group activity work.

6. Providing feedback to students.

7. Maintaining student participation records. A sample record-keeping sheet is included with this packet.

8. Participating in race/human relations staff development activities at the school site. (Teachers are also encouraged to participate in other district-sponsored race/human relations activities.)

9. Providing input to the race/human relations facilitators and/or program director regarding race/human relations curriculum activities.

Assistant Superintendent and Directors - Community Relations and Integration Services Division

The assistant superintendent and directors of the Community Relations and Integration Services Division serve as general resource persons to the Race/Human Relations Program.

Race/Human Relations Facilitator

The major resource support system for the Student Race/Human Relations Program is the site-assigned race/human relations facilitator. Under the direction of the Community Relations and Integration Services Director, the facilitator assists the principal in implementing and monitoring Race/Human Relations Program activities and providing inservice for staff members. Support services include:

1. Consulting. The consulting role involves activities such as contacting site administrators, and devising a plan of action for the year; serving on site committees; facilitating problem-solving and decision-making activities, and providing other resources as needed.

2. Teaching Demonstration Lessons. Race/Human relations lessons are conducted upon request as time and work schedules permit. In addition, facilitators assist teachers as they become more comfortable in working with race/human relations activities.

3. Conducting Workshops. Facilitators prepare materials, arrange for resources, implement inservice sessions and workshops, in addition to assisting with individual workshop evaluations.

4. Developing Materials. Materials in race/human relations are constantly updated. Facilitators assist in conducting research and writing materials for classrooms and workshops, as well as for use as curriculum.

5. Teaching Continuing Education Classes. Facilitators teach Continuing Education classes in the area of race/human relations during Fall, Spring, and Summer sessions.

Other responsibilities include classroom visitations, participating in teacher meetings and communicating suggestions for program revision, as well as participating in inservice designed to improve facilitation skills. Race/Human relations facilitators assist with the district's monitoring and evaluation processes, as requested.

Community Aides for Integration

A limited number of community aides for integration provide support and assistance to the Race/Human Relations Program at individual school sites throughout the district. Under the direction of the principal, classroom teacher, and/or counselor, the community aide may work with small groups of students in the classroom or counseling center. They provide leadership for small group discussions.

STAFF DEVELOPMENT

Staff development for the Race/Human Relations Program will be conducted by the race/human relations staff. Inservice for the student program will be conducted at the school site or at designated locations determined by the site administrator and the site-assigned facilitator.

The initial inservice regarding the 1983-84 student program will be conducted prior to October 31, 1983. Throughout the school year, additional inservice sessions will be provided, based on a request from the administrator and staff, and conducted by the site-assigned race/human relations facilitator according to his/her work schedule. School site personnel will be requested to assist the facilitator in conducting staff inservice as appropriate.

PROGRAM MONITORING

The Community Relations and Integration Services Division will monitor the implementation of the student program, as follows:

1. Informal. Informal monitoring will occur through classroom observations, through feedback received in staff meetings, and through other sources of information.

2. Formal. Formal monitoring will occur as the Community Relations and Integration Services Division conducts a general monitoring of all classroom/site programs at approximately forty schools per year. A major portion of this monitoring focuses on implementation of the Race/Human Relations Program.

In addition, assistant superintendents for Areas I, II, III, and IV will monitor programs conducted at each of their assigned schools.

EVALUATION

The Evaluation Services Department will conduct a formal evaluation at a designated number of schools in order to determine program effectiveness.
