Peace Corps man to work for Negroes

MASERU.—The deputy-director of the Peace Corps in Lesotho, Mr. Harold Brown, is leaving Maseru on June 3 after seven months in the country.

The director of the Peace Corps in Lesotho, Mr. David R. Sherwood, said yesterday that recent events in the United States had made it seem more important for Mr. Brown, a Negro civil rights leader, to be at home "to aid his Negro brothers in their struggle for full equality."

Mr. Sherwood said the Peace Corps shared Mr. Brown's deep concern over the racial situation in the United States.

It felt that in releasing him to return to America the Peace Corps was making a positive contribution towards the resolution of America's most critical problem. — Sapa.
