SAN DIEGO, March 10 -- City Councilman Leon Williams has received the endorsement of San Diego Police Capt. George "Jim" Malloy, a onetime candidate for Fourth District county supervisor who has withdrawn from the race.

"His interest and desire to make improvements in the local community impress me. I will support him 100 percent."

Add 1 -- Leon Williams Endorsed By Former Candidate Jim Malloy

Williams, a city councilman 13 years, announced his candidacy for the Fourth District supervisorial seat at a press conference Feb. 22. The incumbent, Jim Bates, is running for Congress and also has endorsed Williams.

Malloy said William's decision to run was one of several reasons for his departure from the campaign.

He said when he first decided to run, he did not know that Williams was going to run. Malloy endorsed Williams as a man who will have the interests of the district at heart.

Williams has stated that if elected, he will focus his efforts on regional economic development, improvements in the justice system, adequate housing, work-training programs for welfare recipients, and consolidation of city/county services.
