Youth Corps Gets Funds For Jobs

The Department of Labor has allocated $646,660 in federal funds to the Neighborhood Youth Corps to help provide work opportunities for some 1,500 youths this summer.

Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz announced the grant in Washington. The Neighborhood Youth Corps is sponsored by the San Diego Urban League.

Leon Williams, area director of the war on poverty program, said 360 of the youths enrolled in the program are school dropouts. Most of the other enrollees are high school students.

The Neighborhood Youth Corps program is designed to help deprived youth between 16 and 22. They are given opportunities to get job training and are urged to return to school.
