A Bargain for Vacationers

A brisk sale of the $7 "Golden Passport" is reported by Forest Supervisor Stanley R. Stevenson of the Cleveland National Forest. This year long permit is valid nationwide and admits the purchaser and all occupants of private non-commercial vehicles to over 7,000 federally operated recreation areas. National forests and national parks are included.

Stevenson said that about 50 per cent of campers purchased the $7 permit last year, but about 80 per cent have them this season. "This is a good bargain for most vacationers and evidently the word is getting around," he said.

Campers can also use the designated campgrounds by paying a $1 per car daily fee.

The "Golden Passport" is on sale at all ranger stations and at the Forest Supervisor Headquarters, 1196 Broadway, San Diego. They can also be obtained from the campground attendants.

Brown to Direct Self-Help Project

Civil rights activist Harold K. Brown has been appointed director of the O.E.O. Project Self-Help Through Neighborhood Leadership. The project is designed to train 35 men and women each year in community leadership.

Brown, an assistant, and a group of volunteer specialists will provide formal training and supervised experience to the paid leadership interns to be drawn from 35 neighborhood clusters within the Southeast area.

Brown has been a local and national officer in CORE, charter advisory committee member of the San Diego Citizen's Interracial Committees; member of the Economic Opportunity Commission; and a sponsor of Dialogue, a forum for interracial communication.

Leonard McBride, San Diego CORE chairman, said the 10-member personnel Selection Committee had voted unanimously to appoint Brown to head the project.

McBride said applicants for the assistant director and stenographer-clerk, will be considered by the committee at 8 p.m., tonight, Thursday.
