If you have time, drop grandma a card.

Oct. 9

Dear Miss Anna Banana!

I'm sitting here propped up in bed recovering from 5 days of worry over grandma's "inroads." As it is, I am watching Robert Young, the beautiful Princess Diane of the House of Hapsburg, and the handsome white horse Flovan. Robert Young saves all of them. And in the closing shot they are pictured together. Love and Flovan the horse, conquer all. I suppose Flovan will be best man! All on TV of course.

Grandma will be uncomfortable for a few days, but sailed through her surgery with flying colors considering her age. Her liver is enlarged but one can live with that. And her gallstones were removed. She had a mess of 'em.

I hope you and dad are doing well and managing to keep house and fix the meals. Have you tried any new recipes?

Mother's doctor has long curved sideburns and he teaches at the USC medical school. Her surgeon is a nice fellow too, and very skilled. The nursing care is excellent in the Huntington Hospital. Should be. It costs $50.00 per day. I don't know how some of these patients manage, but I can see how Medicare might help.

What are you making for the art show? It sounds as though it will be fun. It is hot here and the air is full of smog. I miss the bossy-cow smell of Davis and the atmosphere there. There are some nice people in Pasadena, however. I do my shopping over in Alhambra where I can rub shoulders with the common man. Pasadena is full of refined little old ladies.

Grandma is one of the favorites of all the nurses, negro workers, and so on at the hospital, so she receives exceptional care. She doesn't make unnecessary demands and they appreciate that.

Well, it's almost 12:00 noon, so perhaps I'd better get dressed. I have several records for grandma.

I love you, dear and miss you and dad,
mother
