Dear Lee. Have a happy birthday,
Miss Maturity!
love, B.

Dear Annie: We're out in the wilds of the South Carolina sea coast on an island which Pat says resembles Viet-Nam. But even though our cabin is remote and quiet, the real world is not far away: the rural poverty is astounding. You wouldn't believe all the shacks people live in. Except for the resort part of the island, most of the residents are black. No doctors or dentists get out this far. However, OEO and Head Start have offices in some churches. They need it, too. Today we saw a little dog that had no fur on its legs - Pat said he had the mange from malnutrition. He didn't do anything but curl up and sleep, so I guess he's going to die pretty soon.

The countryside is beautiful and strange. Nothing quite like it in California. Feel Mom Happy Mother's Day. Will go on to try to find something for both of you
