Community Economic Development

SUBJECT: Merit Evaluation

I would add a number three to your last paragraph:

and thirdly the program involves participation from the business, political, ethnic and religious communities which is consistent with SDSU's efforts to develop stronger relationships with its external constituencies.

MANAGEMENT PERSONNEL PLAN MERIT EVALUATION

ACADEMIC AFFAIRS

Name: Harold Brown

Title: Associate Dean

College/Division: College of Business Administration Department:

Administrator Level (I, II, or III): III

Check if Supervisory

Merit Evaluation Rating Period: From: 1/1/95 To: 3/31/96

Please provide a thorough and complete narrative evaluation statement of the performance of the above Management Personnel Plan employee. The evaluation statement should specifically address the quality of the employee's performance and the level of the employee's productivity in carrying out Management Personnel Plan responsibilities.

If the Management Personnel Plan employee has a supervisory designation, the narrative evaluation statement must specifically address the quality of the employee's supervisory performance.

During the 1995-96 academic year, Harold Brown focused on the final conceptualization and implementation of the certificate program in Community Economic Development (CED). This process included final curriculum and course development, recruiting and training of faculty, all program logistics, recruiting students, developing external student scholarship and program support, and program implementation.

These activities have resulted a charter class of 27 students who are scheduled for graduation on June 1, 1996.

This program is an integral part of the SDSU efforts to more closely align various university activities with community needs. It has benefited the university in a number of ways. First, it has involved business faculty in a program that increases their involvement with the community. Secondly, it addresses an important community educational need for a group of skilled community participants that are prepared to help their communities grow economically.
