

THE COLLEGE WOMAN'S RESPONSIBILITY IN THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY

- I. We are now at war to preserve the civilization which has fostered the arts and sciences and has made their benefits available to all mankind. College women, more especially at a time when college men are called to service, must carry greater responsibility for the perpetuation of the arts and sciences.
- II. Certain occupations require college education in war or peace. These are being vacated increasingly at this time. It is imperative that women in college devote themselves to the task of continued preparation which will enable them to fill these vacancies.
- III. College women have a responsibility to aid directly in the prosecution of the war by volunteering, where they would be most valuable, their services in civilian defense.
- IV. College women have a responsibility for the maintenance of morale.
